A Testimony

I want to take this opportunity to share a little about my personal faith and my Saviour Jesus Christ. The closer I get to the end of my life, the more precious He is to me. I truly feel like I will be going home. A home His is even now preparing for all who accept Him.

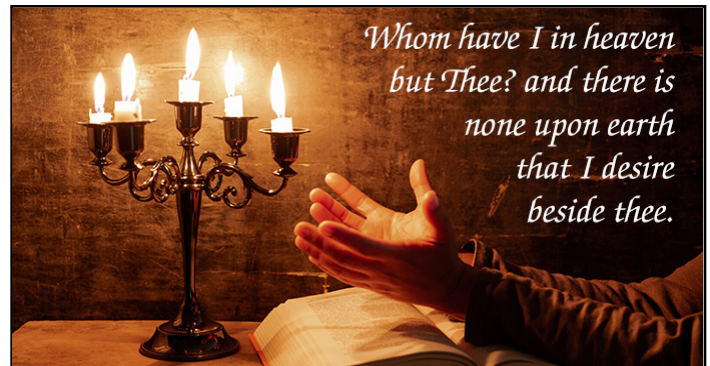

I remember years ago at a place I used to work, I was giving a witness to a fellow worker. Their reply was that they thought heaven would be boring. I was so taken back that I didn't know what to say. I hope they've had a different opinion since then.

I believe the Spirit of a person is God breathed and eternal. The only thing to be determined is where we will spend that eternity — with or without God - in light or in darkness. We must all give account for what we have done in this life. If it's not under the blood of Jesus, then it counts. I know there is much I have done that I am glad is hidden in His sea of forgetfulness. What about you?

We are all closer to that eternity than we know. Not just because of the state of the world, but because we never know which day might be our last. Perhaps even too quick to pray a prayer — a prayer of repentance before we step into eternity. Well did the Bible prophecy that in the last days people would call good evil and evil good - seeking to change times and seasons. They are even letting a child determine what sex they want to be. Such confusion. Well, I'm sorry to tell you, "It's God's creation and it's His rules". He created them male and female.

I would not want to presume that someone was not a believer, but better that than presuming they were. Presuming and never asking. I would encourage everyone to search the depths of their heart and be assured where they stand. Where do you want to spend eternity? He promises it won't be boring. Forgiveness is free for the asking - asking and believing. Then we begin our walk to know Him and be like Him.

I like the way the classic amplified bible states Phil. 3:10-12. "[For my determined purpose is] that I may know Him [that I may progressively become more deeply and intimately acquainted with Him, perceiving and recognizing and understanding the wonders of His Person more strongly and more clearly], and that I may in that same way come to know the power outflowing from His resurrection [which it exerts over believers], and that I may so share His sufferings as to be continually transformed [in spirit into His likeness even] to His death, [in the hope] That if possible I may attain to the [spiritual and moral] resurrection [that lifts me] out from among the dead [even while in the body]. Not that I have now attained [this ideal], or have already been made perfect, but I press on to lay hold of (grasp) and make my own, that for which Christ Jesus (the Messiah) has laid hold of me and made me His own."

*Whom have I in heaven but Thee? and there is none upon earth
that I desire beside thee.*

I admit that others have traveled much further down this path than I, but my seeking and struggle continues. They say we can have as much as we have hungered for. Are you hungry for God and His righteousness? Just to know Jesus in the fullness of His glory and majesty. He promises, "you will seek Me and find Me, when you search for Me with all your heart."

Even if there were a thousand gods to worship, when I consider the goodness and mercy of God and the gift of Jesus' sacrifice - there is only one choice in my mind. He has such love for us that He was willing to suffer and die for us. A Holy God cannot dwell with an unholy people, and He desires to dwell with us. To share Himself with us for an eternity. Well did King David say, "One thing I have desired of the Lord, that will I seek: that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the Lord, and to inquire in His temple."

How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? Hebrews 2:3
