

i think things will be short today. don't feel really inspired to say anything. not there is ever a shortage of saying things to lift up my Lord. i just want to be careful that they are not my words but the Holy Spirit's.

all that's really coming to me is time. it's amazing how quickly the days turn to weeks and the weeks to months. then the years began to accumulate and before one is aware, it's all over. time as we know it has collapsed. collapsed into eternity. none of us know when that might be. a traffic accident or even a sudden heart attack.

the fact is, there is a fullness of time; for this age and for each of us. will there be time or even awareness in that moment to recognize it is now? fear or panic may fully occupy the moment. will the Holy Spirit whisper one last time to the soul that is in danger? "but others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire, hating even the garment defiled by the flesh." jude 1:23 none of us know what might go through one's mind as they take their final breath. will they have their regrets? we just know if the Holy Spirit isn't there, it won't be of God.

Jesus arrived in the fullness of time. He accomplished His mission and then returned to the bosom of the Father. will we accomplish our mission and do the same? what is the mission of each of us? "this is the work of God, that you believe in Him whom He sent." john 6:29 oh precious soul, if you do not already know this life we have in Him, i beg you to take it seriously. consider your time and count it short. He will always be there to aid the one who is seriously seeking.

how the heart of God aches for those who are trapped in religions and misguided beliefs. when someone is not even sure if they are a man or a woman and think they can decide, can confusion not be recognized? this is from the enemy and the sin he desires to propagate.
only God can deliver from these things; can give us light to see; can open our hearts to truth.

yes, confusion is real. pain is real. time is real.
heaven and hell are real. eternity is also real. it only remains to be decided where it will be spent.
will you be there in the new creation? to live forever with the one who created you and loves you, or will you be separated from Him forever? "for behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered or come to mind." isa 65:17 unless you are there dear one, you also will no longer be remembered. there will be no sorrow or regrets in heaven. just make sure you are there. the way to Him is easy. it is through Jesus Christ! "Jesus said to him, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me." john 14:6

linda