

apr 5

the grays are disappearing

"how long will you falter between two opinions? if the Lord is God, follow Him; but if baal, follow him." 1 kings 18:21

there are no "gray" areas anymore. those who are following the ways of satan are boldly making it known while many believers are just going along to get along. even here in america, i look around and can't help but believe the majority doesn't agree with all these practices. i ask myself, "how could decent people descend into darkness so fast?"

"truly, these times of ignorance God overlooked, but now commands all men everywhere to repent." acts 17:30 mankind is no longer in it's infancy, fearful of every omen and thunderous unknown. they have now searched the stars and built upon their accumulated knowledge as the word says, "little by little." exo 23:30 but has all their accumulated knowledge brought wisdom with it? when the apostle paul was making defense for the gospel they said, "paul, you are beside yourself! much learning is driving you mad!" acts 26:24 in fact, he was speaking truth. it was their learning, accompanied by arrogance and pride, that had driven them mad.

i think true madness lies in the heart of someone who can look around at the universe and and claim there is no God; it all just happened. scientists say just a tiny bit nearer to the sun, we would all burn to death; a tiny bit distant, we would surely freeze. sure, all things happened perfectly for good with no design involved. the one believing that have flat refused to know and acknowledge the truth. they have, "their understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart." eph 4:18

the word tells us, "because what may be known of God is manifest in them, for God has shown it to them. for since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead, so that they are without excuse, because, although they knew God, they did not glorify Him as God, nor were thankful, but became futile in their thoughts, and their foolish hearts were darkened." rom 1:19-21

few today would tremble in fear at what an eclipse might portend? few today would make something with their hands, call it god and proceed to worship and expect it to hear and protect them. we look back at these people now and think they were simple minded; backwards in all their ways. have we progressed much further when the world says gender is flexible from what God assigned? yes, the grays are disappearing and we must choose sides, God or satan.

no longer can one "ride the fence." there is no switzerland in this battle; no neutral territory. if you don't loathe the sin which does so easily beset you, if you keep doing it again and again without shame or heartfelt remorse, perhaps you should check your repentance. maybe it was just regret at getting discovered that made you profess belief? we have to turn from our wicked ways if we want His healing, in our lives and in our land. too many just want the "hurt" off. the gospel; the good news is: if your heart truly detests these things; if you really desire the light over the darkness, God will do "all our works in us." isa 26:12

we may be "confident of this very thing, that He who has begun a good work in you will complete it until the day of Jesus Christ." phil 1:6 if you change your mind, then God will change your heart. it really is just a decision; a decision to seek after good instead of evil. the blood is our escape from the past. (so much garbage left behind in mine.)

my heart is fearful for those just playing around with their salvation. it's not those who stumble and want to be better and try to be better, it's those who willfully continue on in their ways, still "expecting" grace. perhaps like a catholic receiving absolution from a priest and believe all is ok, as they rush out the door to their waiting sin. friends, it is not confession of the mouth that will save. it is confession of the heart. it is crying out, "God, be merciful to me a sinner!" luke 18:13

are you practicing fornication or adultery? do you gladly steal, justifying it with some reasoning in your mind? the word says even liars will find themselves in the lake of fire. our God is a holy God; holy beyond all we could imagine. it will only be through the righteous blood of Jesus we shall be able to stand in the day of judgement; and yes, judgement is coming.

His wrath is coming upon all who practice ungodliness and anyone standing in the way will be consumed.

the grays are disappearing and a stand must be taken. actually, there never was any gray with God. it was and is always light. sin must be discarded and salvation sought. witness must be made to the purity and truth of His grace. "whoever is ashamed of Me and My words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him the Son of Man also will be ashamed when He comes in the glory of His Father with the holy angels." mark 8:38

"the watchman said, 'the morning comes, and also the night. if you will inquire, inquire; return! come back!'" isa 21:12 don't be found with unequal scales and found wanting. His blood is the only thing that can balance out the scales and tip them into your favor. don't leave this life without it.